YALE MAKES CHARGES AGAINST PENN STATE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.-It is said that there is a probability that Yale will drop Penn State from its football schedule next year, although obody in authority will make a statement for publication.

The alleged act of a Penn State player in attacking Erwin in Saturday's game and provoking him to self-defense, and the official exclusion of both men from the field, was followed by rough tactics. One instance that was flagrant, but secaped the officials, was the piling up on Dines and rough-handling of him in taking a punt.

Yale was nettled before the game because the Penn State eleven was lare in coming to the field. The Elis sat on wet benches lifteen minutes awaiting the arrival of the visitors.
